LITERATURE REVIEW

Definition of LGBT

The term LGBT which stands for “Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender” has been used since the 1990s to replace the phrase “gay community” because this term is more representative of the groups already mentioned (Suprayogi, 2019). which is used to show equal division of roles in masculine and feminine characters at the same time. An andro in the sense of gender identity, is a person who cannot fully fit into masculine and feminism gender roles (Nindyarini Wirawan, 2018). The definition of LGBT is an abbreviation which means Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender which explains that Lesbian means a woman who loves or likes women, both physically and sexually and spiritually, so this is indeed very deviant. Gay is a man who likes and also loves men, and the word gay is often used to clarify or still refer to homosexual behavior. Bisexual is a little different from the two meanings above because bisexual people are people who can have emotional and sexual relationships of two kinds. Gender so that this person can have a romantic relationship with a man or a woman (Septiyana & Aminatun, 2021). As for transgender it is the dissimilarity of the gender identity assigned to the person with his/her gender, and a transgender person can include people who are homosexual, bisexual, or heterosexual.

The research method has a very important role in a study. The procedure for conducting a research must be based on scientific research methods so that the results obtained and accepted objectively. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

RESULTS

The occurrence of LGBT behavior is triggered by two things, namely the sexuality hormone factor and rational justification (thoughts). By biologically, the human body has a hormonal system, one of which is related to sexual desire and sexual orientation. Reinforcement of stimuli that enter through the senses (eyes, ears, skin) can trigger the body's hormonal activity that encourages action to fulfill biological needs in the form of channeling sexuality. Someone who sees, hears, is touched by something related to sex, whether pornographic shows, hears sexual activity or touches the skin as a result of sexual activity will encourage sexual stimulation. A person will have a desire to channel sexuality when there is a trigger.

On the other hand, if what he thinks or his sexual orientation is the other way around, what will appear is deviations such as Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender (LGBT). These deviations can occur because the knowledge of sex they gain leads to LGBT behavior either directly or indirectly. In addition to hormonal factors, most environmental factors influence a person to be gay.¹¹The environment can directly or indirectly teach and shape people's thinking that something that was previously taboo or unusual becomes considered normal. The logic of a person's thinking changes from previously not considering LGBT as a common thing to considering something common.

Justification for LGBT behavior can also occur through life events that they experience. An unexpected environment can also trigger flight to deviant behavior as an expression of rejection. A person can become homosexual due to a family that is not harmonious, for example a father figure as a cruel man makes a person homosexual and environmental factors (social construction) greatly affect the development of a child, including the formation or selection of his sexual orientation. How the interaction of parents raising children, relationships between families, social environment and friendship can all be intermediaries for the spread of LGBT.

DISCUSSION

As experienced by 2 (two) respondents in this study, sexual orientation can also occur due to the interaction of several factors at once, including environmental factors (sociocultural), biological, and personal/personal (psychological) factors. This fact shows that friendship leading to sexual acts and games is actually an unnatural thing. Sexual maturation does not always coincide with age (Aminatun & Oktaviani, 2019). If in the 1980s, lesbian behavior was still included in the behavior of sexual deviations. However, since 2000, lesbian have entered the lifestyle (Pranoto, 2021).

There are several factors related to LGBT behavior include psychology. They feel that their parents gave them an experience that they remember to this day. Psychologically, how to dress and dress up can lead to homosexual behavior (gay/lesbian) (Suprayogi, Samanik, & Chaniago, 2021). The games they played in childhood were very influential with homosexual behavior (gay/lesbian). Lesbian actors do not like things related to male games and their friends in childhood are many who are girls until now (Pranoto & Suprayogi, 2020a).

Then the next factor is parenting. The respondents said that parenting has an impact on the deviant behavior they experience. For example, parenting is very pampering so that they feel the most cared for and obeyed all their wishes (Oktaviani et al., 2021). Deviations in parenting can also occur such as having a bad relationship with their father. (Sasalia & Sari, 2020) asserted that hatred arises with men and considers men to be always cruel, so they have become comfortable with another women to this day.

Another factor that causes they are lesbian is sexual experience (Samanik, 2018). They said, they had an unpleasant sexual experience from their partner environment even within their own families. Either done by the same sex or even heterosexual. The forms of sexual harassment experienced by them are relatively diverse (Novanti & Suprayogi, 2021). For example, forced treatment and holding their genitals. There are also those who experience sexual experiences such as oral sex with their own siblings and there are also the genitals of someone who has a role model in schools, rubbed against their genitals and others.

CONCLUSION

The LGBT peculiarity has turned into a worldwide issue. The quantity of LGBT entertainers keeps on expanding consistently. Step by step instructions to spread LGBT conduct is simple in light of the fact that each person has a component of sexuality chemical and component of judicious support. reason. Naturally, people have chemicals that are connected with their sexual craving and sexual direction. Support of upgrades that enter through the faculties (eyes, ears, skin) can set off the body's hormonal movement that urges activity to satisfy organic requirements through diverting sexuality. Then again, the drive to feel that LGBT conduct is ordinary will coordinate the appropriation of sexual longing from the body's hormonal exercises so it additionally veers off as per the desires of the bearing of the brain.
